

#1381

Pen sketch/Biography

Self-expression through type, has never been part of my repertoire. However, in order to find out a little about me and why I chose to donate you will continue to read on. I apologise in advance for anything boring and or corny.

I come from quite a large family with a mixed background. My paternal ancestry can be traced back to Jamaica through my Grandfather and his, and if you wish to go back even further you'll find yourself somewhere in west-central Africa. My maternal ancestry is pretty interesting also. Aside from the Irish, Welsh and English, there is a bit of northern European that is yet to be analysed [REDACTED] [REDACTED] I would say, culturally I'm quite unique with droplets from each area.

What are my interests? Don't worry I'm not asking you. It's just a little sub heading to avoid confusion. But you knew that. Right?

I have a plethora of interests. They range from the study of history, to exploring ancient ruins. They could also consist of me spending hour after hour destroying other plays on various videogames. I'm also a keen follower of politics, despite not having a party that represents me. I take a Keynesian approach to economics of which the basic principle is spending to make money. I disagree with policies of austerity, especially when they effect vital services such as the police or the transport system. Contrary to my views on austerity politics, I'm definitely not a fan or supporter of the welfare state. I'm quite an active person. I enjoy my time in the gym. I also love all types of competitive sport when I get the chance to play.

I would describe my personality as jovial, and usually light hearted but quick to become serious within the right circumstances. I have a relaxed outlook on life and believe stress is the biggest problem we can all avoid.

#1381 Goodwill message

Hey kid,

What say you and I grab a beer when you come of age?

Learn much, and when you're done learning....

...learn some more.